

Faculty Success Newsletter

November 12: A summary of news and events to support faculty success

- Get answers about specific instructional policies. Our Instructional Policy Liaisons are ready to help! Connect during virtual office hours on Monday and Friday mornings.
- With the election behind us, use the Teaching in Turbulent Contexts resource guide to support student learning and act as positive anchors in turbulent times.
- Nominate a spectacular teacher for a Distinguished Teaching Award. Nominations are due to school or college deans Feb. 1.
- As we approach the middle of the term, please review the required academic policies, including tracking student progress and the upcoming dead week restrictions.
- Provide your students with new perspectives by inviting an international scholar to host a virtual guest lecture. Bring the Scholars at Risk Virtual Speaker Series to your classroom by emailing Elly Vandegrift, director of the Global Studies Institute.
- Submit your Clark Honors College Faculty Fellow application by Jan. 6 for the opportunity to work with engaged students across disciplines and devote departmental service to our interdisciplinary faculty community.
- Students can plan their degree paths, explore majors and minors, and track their progress towards graduation with the Ducks on Track online tool. Faculty are encouraged to make their students aware of this tool.
- Faculty members can easily donate to the Oregon Employees' Charitable Fund Drive. Donate monthly through payroll deduction or donate one-time gifts to your chosen organizations.

- NOV. 14, 21 Attend UO Faculty Club for casual conversation and networking from 4 to 6 p.m. in the JSMA.
- NOV. 14 Join the Revising the Dissertation and Other First Book Problems virtual workshop with Kim Hogeland, editor from OSU Press as she walks participants through selecting a press, pitching your book, writing a proposal, and next steps. This is part of the Book Disciplines Workshop Series.
- NOV. 14 Those interested in learning more about sabbatical planning can join VPAA Renee Irvin for a Q&A session about Preparing Your Sabbatical Application.
- NOV. 14 First-time online instructors should join Preparing to Teach Online to learn to engage with online students and encourage a robust peer learning community.
- NOV. 21 Join vice provost for academic affairs, Renée Irvin, for a Preparing your Tenure File Q&A session to help pre-tenure faculty prepare materials for tenure and promotion review.
- NOV. 25 Practice observing and communicating about professional, inclusive, engaged, and research-informed teaching in the Peer Review of Teaching workshop. Share strategies, look at examples of constructive feedback, and get oriented toward TEP's observation form.
