

WELCOME TO THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

The next chapter of your career

The University of Oregon is a leading public research university dedicated to exceptional teaching, research, and service. Our goal is to help you integrate into a work and life environment founded on community, diversity, inclusion, and belonging. The university has created and supported myriad programs to this end, and we want to highlight a few that are potentially relevant to you.

NEW FACULTY SUPPORT

We offer engaging programming to ensure our faculty feel supported, find their community, and continually grow across their career as teachers, mentors, scholars, and leaders. The Office of the Provost offers programs, workshops, and training for faculty and unit heads, with special attention to moments of transition, including Practical Course Design for New Faculty, New Faculty Success Programs, New Faculty Socials, and Associate Professor Peer Mentorship programs, among others.

DUAL CAREER SERVICES

We are committed to assisting dual career partners with their job searches and career transitions through a range of resources and opportunities tailored to the individual.

The University of Oregon employs a broad and progressive definition of domestic partnership, inclusive of marital and nonmarital relationships, regardless of gender identity or expression.

In cooperation with Human Resources and the Office of the Provost, the dual career liaison assists partners in planning job searches or career transitions. While employment is not guaranteed, the liaison will offer:

- Resources and advice for off-campus job opportunities
- Identification of on-campus job opportunities
- Information about further academic study
- Resume/CV and cover letter reviews
- Career transition or relaunch advice

CHILDCARE AND CAREGIVING

Balancing work and family can present a challenge. The UO is cognizant of this fact, and whether you are a parent now or plan to be, we would like you to know that university-affiliated families have access to three childcare centers on campus. These centers provide care for preschool and elementary school-aged children. Priority is given to UO families.
