

Policy for Allocation of Professional Development Funds

Comparative Literature Department

I. Preamble

The department and College recognize the importance of encouraging and supporting bargaining unit faculty members in professional development activities that enhance the faculty member's professional life, as well as the university's academic mission. As section 1 of Article 35 of the Collective Bargaining Agreement (CBA) with United Academics states, "Professional development extends, but is not limited, to workshops, courses, professional conferences, and participation in professional organizations related to the bargaining unit faculty member's academic discipline and job duties." This policy does not address the expenditure of academic support account (ASA) funds, external grants or awards which have restrictions on use, or endowment funds which have restrictions on use.

II. Available Funds

Funds available for professional development activities may come from supplies and services (S&S) funds allocated centrally from the College and other discretionary funds available to the department (e.g., summer session dividends or unrestricted endowment accounts). Professional development support is only one possible use of these available funds, and the department head will determine how much of available funds (if any) will be allocated toward professional development activities in consultation with the faculty, consistent with the unit's internal governance policy.

III. Allocation of Funds

The Department of Comparative Literature currently has no such funding. Should funds become available, the department head would invite applications from faculty and appoint an ad hoc committee, which would allocate funding based on its assessment of the merit of individual proposals. Both TTF and NTTF would be eligible to compete for such funds.

IV. Distribution and Accounting of Expenditures

Professional development funds will be distributed as expenditures occur, not transferred into faculty accounts in advance. The department head and department manager will keep updated records on commitments of professional development support to individual faculty members.
