Survey Questions & Responses

1. Do you have at least one mentor?

- 49 students said Yes they have one mentor
- 48 students said No they do not have a mentor at UO
- 29 students said Yes they have more than one mentor

Summary: Approximately 38.89% of students said they have a mentor and approximately 61.90% of students have one or more mentor at UO. About 38.10% of students reported having no mentor at UO.

2. Do you have a mentoring relationship outside your primary advisor?

- 35 reported Yes
- 25 reported No

Summary: 58.33% of students have a mentoring relationship outside of their primary advisors whilst 41.67% do not.

3. Who mentors you at the UO?

- 43 UO faculty advisor
- 6 Other
 - Industry outside academics
 - Assigned mentor
 - Assigned by the program

- Cooperating teacher
- UO connected atty (attorney?)
- 17 Other faculty in program
- 12 Current UO faculty outside program
- 12 peer from my program
- 8 UO employer or supervisor
- 2 UO peer outside program

Summary: 43% are mentored by their UO faculty advisor, 72% are mentored by UO faculty inside/outside their programs, 14% are mentored by peers inside/outside their programs, 8% are mentored by employers or supervisors, and 6% receive mentoring from other sources like industry connections

4. How did you find your UO mentor(s)?

- 31 assigned by department
- 20 coursework
- 18 Other
 - Directly reached out, on their own, or reached out to people in the department
 - Lab rotation for PhD
 - Warsaw seminar
 - “While not a formal mentorship, this professional relationship exhibits the characteristics of mentorship and naturally developed.”
- 2 Through UO groups or organizations
 - Science Literacy Program
- 9 UO employment or work assignments

Summary: 38.75% of graduate students reported that their UO mentor was assigned by their department and 25% reported that they found their UO mentor through their coursework. Combined, 63.75% of graduate students reported meeting their UO mentors through a department channel (coursework, assignment). 1.13% reported meeting their mentor through employment or work assignment and 22.5% reported meeting their mentor at UO through other means (e.g., direct outreach, lab rotations, and seminars).

5. Overall, how satisfied do you feel with the mentorship you've been able to find at the UO?

- 17 extremely effective
- 24 very effective
- 12 moderately effective
- 4 slightly effective
- 2 not effective at all

Summary: 69.49% reported that they were very to extremely satisfied (effective?) with the mentorship they've been able to find at UO.

6. Do you have one or more mentors outside of the UO?

- 35 No
- 13 Yes

Summary: 72.92% of students reported that they do not have one or more mentors outside UO, but 27.08% reported that they did have one or more mentors outside UO.

7. How did you meet your mentor(s)?

- 5 employment
- 0 conference
- 2 family member
- 1 Other
 - Mentor programs through the law school
- 5 previous academic institution
- 1 professional society
 - Society of Cinema & Media Studies
- 0 shared identities

Summary: Of these outside mentors, students met them through their employment (5), through family (2), through mentoring programs related to their own programs (1), through their previous academic institution (5), and through a professional society (1). Conferences and shared identities did not have any reported impact on connecting students to their outside mentors.

8. What would you most like your department to do to help you form mentoring relationships at the UO?

- 18 Assign mentors (in addition to advisors)
- 12 Create additional opportunities for informal gatherings (e.g., coffee hours)
- 5 Create additional opportunities for formal gatherings (e.g., student/faculty colloquia)
- 7 Provide mentoring training to faculty and students
- 1 Other
 - “I’m not confident in the department's ability to follow through with any of these options. Most of them can't respond to emails.”

Summary: 41.86% of graduate students reported that they would like their departments to assign their mentors (in addition to their assigned advisors) and 27.91% would like their departments to create additional opportunities for informal gatherings (examples include coffee hours). 16.27% would like to see their departments offer mentoring training to both faculty and students and 11.63% would like to see formal gatherings offered by their departments (examples include student/faculty colloquia).

9. Would you be most interested in developing mentoring relationships with your advisor, other faculty, or graduate student peers?

- 4 Advisor
- 22 Other faculty within dept/program
- 7 Other faculty outside of dept/program

- 6 Grad student peers within dept/program
- 4 Grad student peers outside of dept/program

Summary: 51.15% are interested in developing mentoring relationships with other faculty within their program, 1.6% are interested in faculty outside of their program, and 23.26% are interested in mentoring relationships with their graduate student peers inside/outside their program.

10. What has been the most significant challenge to developing a successful mentoring relationship at the UO?

- 10 Dept/program doesn't assign mentors
- 1 Dept/program doesn't offer opportunities to meet potential mentors
- 5 Faculty does not reflect interests/experiences
- 2 Grad student peers do not reflect my interests/experiences
- 0 Lack of possible mentors with shared identities
- 17 Not knowing how to form mentoring relationships
- 3 Not knowing what to look for in a mentor
- 4 Other
 - "Free thought is not present at the school and it doesn't which department you are engaging. If your views do not fall in line with what is vogue, you are ostracized and deemed ignorant. No dialogue. To say speech is chilled here is not hyperbolic."
 - Hybrid/virtual attendance
 - All of the above are listed issues
 - Dept/program focuses mentorship on undergrads/new grads, older grad students do not receive as much support.

Summary: 23.81% think that their dept/program not assigning mentors has been the most significant challenge, 40.48% think that their lack of knowing how to form mentoring relationships has been the most significant challenge, and 1.67% think that lack of shared identities/experiences with either faculty or graduate student peers is the most significant challenge.

Other responses cited lack of opportunities to meet mentors (1) and not knowing what to look for in a mentor (3).

11. Is there anything else that you would like to tell us about mentoring at the UO? *See additional PDF for full comments, themes are captured below.

Interest and Engagement

- Formalized programming (including multiple mentors) is beneficial and appreciated.
- Mentoring programs are important and provide much-needed support.
- Graduate students desire programming and mentors.
 - Especially seeking professional, personal, and outside of their department mentors.

Recruitment

- UO mentors are attracting graduate students.

Peer Support

- Peer mentors (especially older graduate students) are doing a great job of mentoring and helping.

Programming & Support

- Lacking in general support that doesn't even approach mentoring as a support system.
- Lack of assigned mentors, formal programming, professional development, and training around mentoring.
 - Lack of events around mentoring and connecting with mentors.
 - Departments struggling with mentoring and programming around mentoring.
 - Issues around connection with MA and PhD (time).

Connections & Identities

- Issues around one-way mentoring and lack of connection with assigned mentors.
- Lacking in shared identities around age, parenting, etc.
 - Peer and faculty mentors.
 - Specific mentions around access and disability.
- Lacking in mentors of color.
- Issues around COVID and mentoring including access, in-person versus hybrid or virtual events, and lacking connections.
- Impact on mental health (on mentoring, on mentees, on mentors).

Knowledge of Mentoring/Advising

- Wanting to go over unspoken rules of academia.
- Mentors lack information and response approaches to mentoring situations.
- Lacking in knowledge around choosing a mentor, engaging with them, and setting expectations.
- Advising versus mentoring.

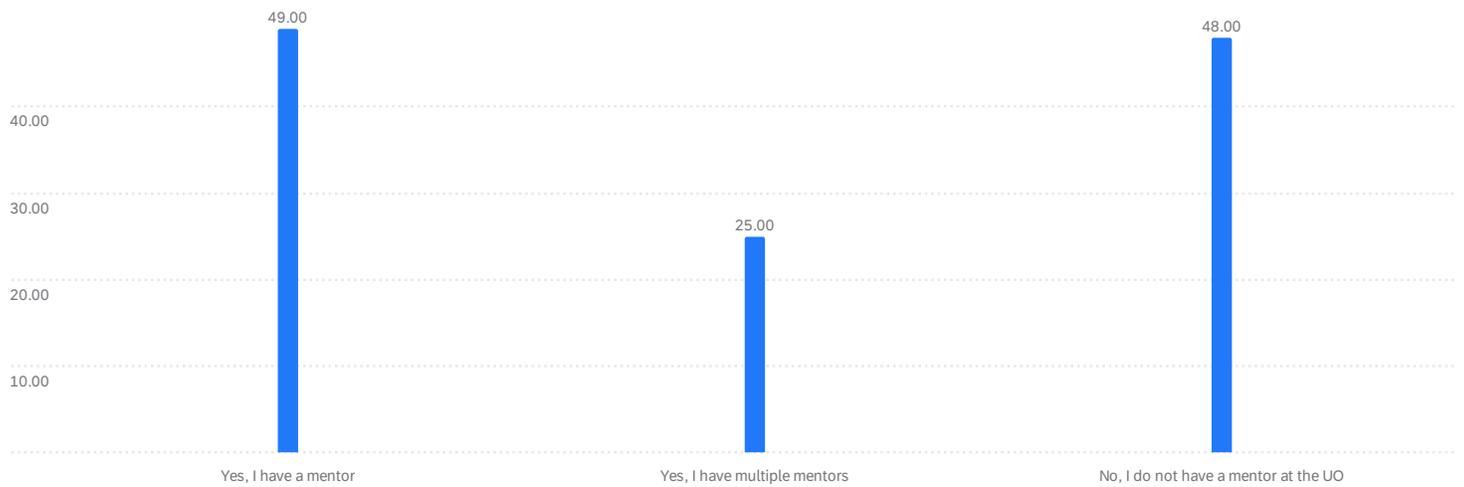

12. Please answer the following questions about the UO mentor who you feel provides the best mentorship for you right now. Does your mentor...?

- Make an effort to know you as an individual

Q11 - Is there anything else that you would like to tell us about mentoring at the UO?

Is there anything else that you would like to tell us about mentoring at th...

I specifically chose the UO and my graduate program because of my mentor and have stayed because of the support from my mentors.

The advisors in my department are not informative and do not regularly respond to emails if at all. This has delayed my progress towards earning my degree. Also I am very surprised that I was not assigned a faculty member when I began the program as an advisor or mentor.

I enjoy the multiple mentoring opportunities for us grad students at UO, to also serve as such for undergraduate students. I have benefited in my personal and professional development.

I was assigned a mentor in mentoring circles last term and also met another grad student who is a year ahead of me. Both were half my age and I didn't really feel a connection in what they had to share. I'd be more interested in finding a mentor who has more experience rather than a fresh graduate or would love to get to know other non-traditional students or students with families.

If the mentors worked in actually knowing the student, connecting and helping, it would be better than just the student reaching out to the mentor for help. The one way thing is not very effective

What I want out of a mentorship relationship is a safe environment to ask questions about how my doctoral program works, things I should know about different professors, how a research action or direction I take might be perceived by others in academia, and all the other unwritten rules that come with academia. Mentorship has been hit or miss this year, because between the pandemic and almost no requirement for 3rd-5th year students to be on campus, casual interactions have been few and far between, and it can be awkward to constantly email the same people the stupid first-year questions I have. The management department assigns mentors, which I've heard great things about. However, I recognize that not everyone makes for a good mentor, that it's unpaid work for older students, and that not everyone's research interests and skills align with new students'. I think it would be best for the department to ask third years and up to volunteer, and the department can set matches based on research/personality fit. It would also be important to acknowledge that mentorship takes previous research time away from older students, but that it should be a quality investment in newer students. Maybe mentorship could switch in students' second year, but that might get too complicated with so little students in the department.

NA

There are not many mentors of color at the university to reach out to.

It is absolutely non-existent. My interactions with the administration and advisors have been more than wanting.

My mentor is a peer ahead of me in the program. She is wonderful and doing a great job, I wouldn't really expect another student to provide me with PD opportunities. This was arranged by graduate students who serve on the department committees.

Remote learning during the COVID-19 pandemic has negatively impacted my ability to create connections with the peer students in my cohort and the faculty leading my classes. While course content has been clear and valuable during the pandemic, additional networking opportunities are scarce or they are in-person and I am not yet comfortable socializing indoors in large group settings.

I think that mentoring is very important, especially in overwhelming academic situations like PhD programs even below.

I appreciate the mentorship program over the fall term, but it was hard to form lasting connection with the assigned mentors since they were out of the area (and I prefer to meet in person.) Also, it's hard to know how to establish the long-term relationship/connection with people... I don't know what is expected of the student in such mentor/mentee relations.

Is there anything else that you would like to tell us about mentoring at th...

The UO does not, in general, support graduate students. The constant attacks on our health care benefits heaps tremendous stress on us. It's laughable that you have this survey for us to evaluate our mentors when you make it harder for us to do our jobs, pay our bills, on top of worrying about whether we're bringing COVID home to our family members. Is the administration modeling professional and respectful identity? Are you fostering a supportive learning and working environment?

I have found it very difficult to find mentors as an autistic woman. I have had to do a lot of individual searching rather than people asking or providing time to work with me. This has been taxing.

I think that the mentorship circles is a great way to be introduced to UO grads in the field. I appreciate the way that is set up. As a T! M.Arch student, I think that it is pretty difficult to find who you are supposed to have as a mentor. How do you ask? What if I don't know exactly who I am supposed to get involved with. I don't necessarily know exactly what I want to do anyway. How does one go about it?

I misinterpreted the first question and couldn't backspace. It seems you are concerned with UO faculty. My cooperating teacher is not affiliated with UO other than to provide a cooperating teacher placement and mentorship in teaching. As for UO faculty, I have positive relationships with my teachers, and I admire a lot of them. However, I wouldn't go as far as to label them as mentors.

There should be more mentoring opportunities for students to find people to receive encouragement outside the department they are the law school does not have formal academic advisors. many law students wish that we did.

I never heard of I can have mentors in addition to advisor. My department EALL never tells me about this.

It is a great and useful program that benefits students.

The fact mental health is not factored into most of this in 2022 is unfortunate.

Everyone seems so busy, so if there is no open invitation or events catered to mentorship it can be quite difficult to filter potential mentor candidates. I don't want to be a bother to people, especially adjunct faculty who are still working professionals.

Your survey and the responses are disconnected...it made this survey very difficult to accurately respond to.

The lack of mentoring within my department has me actively applying to another program. This MA program has been a waste of my time, energy, and money.

I wish there were lesser barriers set by "political correctness" and I could be more of myself as a person.

I have not experienced any mentoring within my academic department. My mentorship has entirely occurred within my professional job within Student Life, which I was in prior to and during my graduate program.

I think in the Master's program compared to Ph.D., two (or three) years maybe not be long enough to build relationships with our mentors?

I didn't know I should be looking for a mentor beyond my advisor.

I don't think that people think about the difference between mentoring and advising - or are intentional about creating mentorships beyond the primary advisor.
